TOWARD A MORE “ENGAGED FIELD PRIMATOLOGY”: COMMUNICATING, ENGAGING, AND COLLABORATING WITH DIVERSE PUBLICS

Erin Riley discusses creating a more engaged field primatology by listening to the knowledge of local people and field assistants, and ensuring multi-platform engagement. At AAPA 2018.

Date published: April 13, 2018

Resource Type: Video, Evolution & Life Sciences, Social Sciences, Public Engagement, Scripture Studies

Link: Toward a More “Engaged Field Primatology”: Communicating, Engaging, and Collaborating with Diverse Publics